

Cottage style interpreted in a modern way

Summer has begun and the sun's rays are enticing us to spend time outdoors. During the hot season of the year, most people spend a lot of time in the garden, on the balcony or on the terrace. The trend of expanding living space to the outside continues: a private outdoor area functions as a second living room or even dining room. Time spent in the garden, on the balcony or on the terrace is primarily time for relaxation – whether with your own family or with guests for a barbecue. Caring for your plants also plays an important role in winding down after a stressful day at work. In this way, gardens, balconies and terraces become rooms out in the green with an atmosphere of well-being, both in the country and the city.

The cottage style is particularly suitable when it comes to the design of outdoor areas. The surfaces of the furniture and planters in Cottage design look like the natural structure of woven wicker baskets and bring a little cosiness to the home. At the same time, they combine the core elements of the cottage house style with a variety of shapes and the robustness of plastic.

Furniture is often a major purchase when it comes to a balcony, terrace or garden. With the design furniture from LECHUZA, it is incredibly easy to give your oasis of well-being a new look. LECHUZA furniture is not only exceptionally robust and weather-resistant against UV radiation and frost, but can also easily be cleaned. The chairs and tables are available from retailers in white and granite. The dining table is available with a tabletop made from safety glass or HPL top in two sizes.
